

WELFARE AND SELF-RELIANCE RESOURCES

One-Page Overviews

Introduction

Welfare and Self-Reliance Services

Department Vision

We strive to follow Jesus Christ by embracing the two great commandments to love God and to love our neighbors. We do this as we

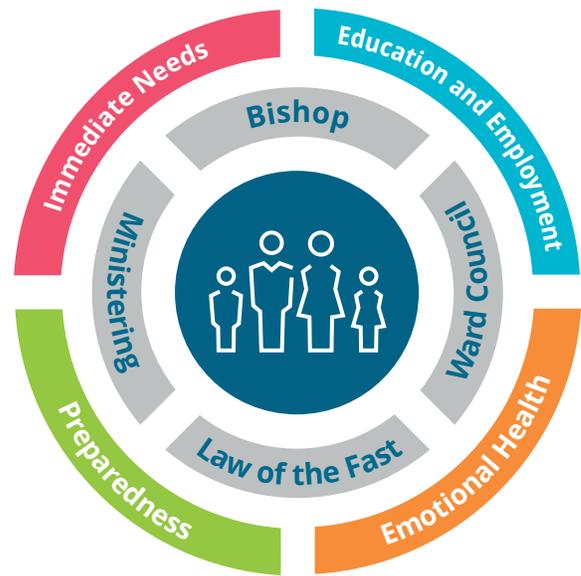

- minister to temporal needs.
- build spiritual and temporal self-reliance.
- bless both givers and receivers.

Resources Tool Kit

As Church leaders seek to care for those in need in their areas, they may be overwhelmed with the various needs of different people. Church leaders can use resources from the Lord's storehouse to fulfill the two great commandments to love God and to love our neighbors.

The Lord's storehouse has everything that a Church leader could use to meet temporal needs, including fast-offering funds and the resources and abilities of each ward member. Resources could include contributions from the immediate family of the person in need or the time and talents of ward members. Also available are community resources and support from the Church itself.

This booklet gives a short overview of Church resources for Church members and leaders. Local leaders can use this guide to choose the tools and services that will be most helpful in caring for those in need in their area. More in-depth information on each tool can be found using the links at the end of each topic. Not all resources are available in your area. Ask your welfare and self-reliance manager (WSRM) which resources are available to you. As a reminder, Church resources are not the only tools in the Lord's storehouse that leaders could use.

When we love God with all our hearts, He turns our hearts to the well-being of others in a beautiful, virtuous cycle."

—RUSSELL M. NELSON, "The Second Great Commandment," Ensign or Liahona, Nov. 2019, 97

Immediate Needs

Self-Reliance Plan

Needs

When Church members are struggling with self-reliance, it's important for leaders to understand the challenges faced. This will help them find likely solutions for immediate, short-term, and long-term self-reliance needs. The Self-Reliance Plan form can help leaders and members analyze needs and make a plan for moving forward.

Description

The Self-Reliance Plan form helps members assess needs, income, and expenses. It will help them create a plan with their leader for becoming more self-reliant. It can be used to help find possible resources and identify types of service the members can give in return for support received. The Self-Reliance Plan form replaces the formerly used Needs and Resources Analysis and Needs and Resources Analysis Supplement.

Who is this for?

This form is for members seeking to become self-reliant (for example, a member receiving Church assistance).

How it works

The Self-Reliance Plan is available on the Church's website in both interactive and printable forms. The member fills out the form alone or with help from a mentor. The leader then meets with the member to review the plan together. If needed, the leader can suggest additional resources from the Lord's storehouse. These include the member's own resources and family as well as community and Church resources. The member makes commitments, and the bishop or assigned leader follows up regularly with the member. These assigned leaders could be the Relief Society and elders quorum presidencies, ministering brothers and sisters, ward welfare and self-reliance specialists (if called), as found in the General Handbook 22.6.5. (ChurchofJesusChrist.org/study/manual/general-handbook/22-providing-for-temporal-needs?lang=eng#title_number44) They will discuss further needs, concerns, and progress made on the plan.

Where to learn more

The Self-Reliance Plan is available in 39 languages on the Church's website: ChurchofJesusChrist.org/callings/welfare-self-reliance/self-reliance-plan.

Fast-Offering Assistance

Needs

Fast offerings are used when people need immediate, temporary aid in meeting physical needs. These could be housing, food, medicine, or other necessities. A priesthood leader can use fast-offering funds to help those with immediate needs. Long-term or chronic needs should be addressed with other tools found within this guide.

Description

Many guides exist to help Church leaders give fast offerings and assist those in need:

1. General Handbook: Serving in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (2020), 22.2.2, "The Law of the Fast and Fast Offerings."
2. Self-Reliance Plan form
Church members in need fill out this form on their own or with the aid of a mentor. The form helps members assess their needs, income, and expenses and find resources within the Lord's storehouse. It will also help them decide what service they can give in return for assistance received and make their own plan for becoming more self-reliant.
3. Providing in the Lord's Way
This in-depth booklet details the doctrines, the principles, and the duties of leaders regarding self-reliance and providing Church assistance.
4. Welfare and Self-Reliance Leader Resources
This website gives leaders a place to find training materials and other aids. These include handbooks, online links, Self-Reliance Plan forms, and information relating to welfare duties.

Who is this for?

The primary audience for these resources is priesthood leaders at the ward or branch level who give help to those in need. Ward and stake council members may also use these resources to support bishops as they give others assistance.

How it works

Depending on local or area needs, other fast-offering assignments and duties include

1. preparing medical fast-offering requests that exceed local leader approval limits and
2. reviewing fast-offering use and training needs or other actions.

A priesthood leader will usually not give funds to the recipient directly. More precise information is given in the resources listed below, especially in the General Handbook chapter 22.

These guides and forms are available online. Providing in the Lord's Way is also available in print and can be ordered from Church Distribution at store.ChurchofJesusChrist.org.

Food and Commodities

Needs

At times, food and other life-sustaining resources may not be readily available to members. This can happen due to product shortages, loss of income, or other factors. The guides listed below can help priesthood leaders as they help members in these situations.

Description

Many guides exist to help Church leaders provide emergency food and commodity assistance to members. These include the following:

1. General Handbook, 22.2.1, "The Lord's Storehouse"
2. Self-Reliance Plan form
Church members in need fill out this form on their own or with the aid of a mentor. The form helps members assess their needs, income, and expenses and find resources within the Lord's storehouse. It will also help them decide what service they can give in return for assistance received and make their own plan for becoming more self-reliant.
3. Providing in the Lord's Way

4. Welfare and Self-Reliance Leader Resources

Who is this for?

The main audience for these materials is bishops and other unit leaders who are helping members with physical, emotional, or behavioral needs or providing bishop's orders for food and other commodities.

Refugee and Immigrant Support

Needs

Refugees and internally displaced people (IDP) who are fleeing persecution or violence often need life-sustaining help. They are cut off from their previous social networks, face severe language barriers, and often cannot work in their places of resettlement. The Church can play a lifesaving role in helping refugees successfully integrate into their new countries and communities.

Description

The Church's Emergency Response team works with Latter-day Saint Charities and other global partners to provide shelter, food, and medical assistance. They also provide clean water, sanitation, hygiene items, and nonfood items, all of which may be needed in refugee crises around the world. This team also helps with longer-term needs, such as education, psycho-social support, and help for refugees settling into camps or other communities.

Who is this for?

Refugee support services are offered to people in various global resettlement communities. This includes communities within the United States and Canada as well as people who have been forced to flee their homes due to political unrest or persecution.

How it works

Outside the United States and Canada:

In collaboration with trusted global partners, the Church provides assistance to refugees and IDPs through three channels:

- Emergency response: This is for natural disasters affecting refugees.
- Refugee immediate support: This primarily means life-sustaining food and shelter.
- Refugee sustained support: This is for longer-term needs, such as education or mental health counseling. It could also be for job training support offered in extended-stay situations, such as resettlement camps. In Europe, these services and others may be offered at Friendship Centers.

Within the United States and Canada:

Depending on the location, the Church offers three main types of service for refugees and immigrants: volunteer support, donations to the refugee resettlement service providers, and training for refugee associates employed at Deseret Industries. The Church also partners with local entities to give free help to immigrants. In the US, this may include

- welcome centers,
- cultural adaptation classes, and
- immigration workshops

JustServe

(in Approved Countries)

Needs

Communities and vulnerable populations need volunteer service. Both the Church and its members benefit from engaging in such service. This Church-sponsored effort enables Church leaders to manage member involvement, transcend perceived boundaries, and build valuable relationships with others in the communities where they live.

Description

JustServe is an initiative that helps members work “in the service of [their] fellow beings” (Mosiah 2:17) by providing a place to both post and find volunteer opportunities for assisting those in need. Under the direction of local Church leaders, nonprofits and others are invited to share volunteer needs through the JustServe web portal and mobile app. It is a free service sponsored by the Church. Projects on the JustServe portal are intended to care for those in need, build bridges of friendship, and enhance the quality of life within one’s own community.

As JustServe becomes established in your area, other faith-based, nonprofit, community, and government organizations can be invited and authorized to post their own volunteer needs and service opportunities. They can then share JustServe as a resource for their audiences to engage with those opportunities.

Who is this for?

JustServe supports several internal Church priorities:

- Members can invite others to “come and help.”
- Service projects can be carried out with the help of service missionaries.
- Projects can be made available to full-time proselytizing missionaries and returned missionaries.

- Through service, the reactivation and retention of members can be supported.
- Service opportunities can be provided for children and youth.
- Service opportunities can be provided for those with Church membership restrictions.
- Service opportunities can be provided for households receiving fast-offering assistance.

How it works

A JustServe working group is established at the stake or coordinating council level as determined locally. The group lead can be a JustServe specialist or the communication director. The working group counsels together to determine which organizations are invited to post projects, and then the group invites those organizations to participate and benefit. The working group strives to have a robust and continually updated slate of meaningful projects to meet both the needs of the community and the needs and desires of Church members and missionaries to give valuable Christian service to their communities.

Please contact your local JustServe specialist or welfare and self-reliance manager for help in getting started.

Emergency Response Funding

Needs

Individuals and communities may need short-term, life-sustaining support after natural disasters, civil unrest, or famine. This can be given through emergency response funding.

Description

The Church works to care for those with the greatest need following a disaster. Emergency response is a program of Latter-day Saint Charities, the official humanitarian arm of the Church. Latter-day Saint Charities gives relief by partnering with government ministries, nongovernmental organizations (NGOs), and community-based organizations, helping millions of people worldwide.

The following are some of the emergency events Latter-day Saint Charities responds to:

- hurricanes and tornadoes
- flooding
- wildfires
- disease outbreaks
- civil conflict
- famine and drought

Who is this for?

Latter-day Saint Charities helps those in need without regard to race, religious affiliation, gender, or nationality.

How it works

If an emergency happens, Church leaders may be asked to help in response efforts and to organize volunteers. When emergencies mainly affect members, bishops may consider using fast-offering funds. The Humanitarian Aid Fund is used to help communities on a larger scale. All projects using the Humanitarian Aid Fund must be approved by the Area Presidency and follow other funding rules.

Helping Hands

Needs

Helping Hands provides service opportunities for Church members, with projects chosen and led by local Church leadership. Helping Hands strengthens the reputation of the Church by helping to dispel negative stereotypes. It introduces Church members to their neighbors and community leaders as Christians who minister in their communities.

Description

Under local priesthood direction, members may be invited to provide community service or to help others. This planning happens under the direction of the stake presidency and with assistance from the stake communication council. Helping Hands work may range from beautifying city streets and parks to helping with disaster relief. Service work also allows the Church to build relationships with other groups, such as community leaders, opinion makers, and the press. These associations can influence public opinion and help create a positive perception of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Who is this for?

Helping Hands is for Church leaders and members with a desire to give service in their areas. It builds bridges of understanding with neighbors and influential community leaders. Helping Hands projects can be formed in all areas of the Church.

How it works

Projects are usually planned by the stake communication council. These councils work under the direction of the stake presidency.

Emergency Psychosocial Services

Needs

Following a disaster or critical event, such as an accident or unexpected death, people may experience emotional reactions such as shock, grief, worry, stress, and sadness. Some people may need supportive psychosocial services or crisis intervention to help them cope.

Description

Family Services counselors can give help after a disaster or critical incident. They do this at the request of Church leaders. They can counsel with leaders and provide assessments, crisis intervention, counseling, or assistance with finding the right resources. All services are designed to increase well-being and emotional self-reliance.

Emergency Response Telesupport: When emergency response psychosocial services cannot be provided in person, Family Services can offer telesupport (by phone or video-conference) at the request of mission presidents, stake presidents, bishops, or leaders in the ward council. Church leaders can contact Family Services to coordinate an urgent-care call for members in need. Emergency response telesupport is crisis counseling, not therapy. The call is typically a one-time contact, lasting 10–20 minutes. Emergency response telesupport does not require any paperwork or payment.

Who is this for?

Emergency emotional support services are for members who experience distress related to a disaster or critical event. Assistance is also available for Church leaders and ministering brothers and sisters who provide comfort and support.

How it works

Following a disaster or critical event, Church leaders contact their local Family Services professional. They will consult about possible needs and available resources, which can include individual, family, small, or large group crisis support. Family Services staff can teach emotional resilience and recommend appropriate actions to take.

Humanitarian Initiatives

Needs

The Church seeks to “succor the weak, lift up the hands which hang down and strengthen the feeble knees” through its humanitarian efforts (see Doctrine and Covenants 81:5).

Humanitarian efforts are an important part of the Church’s divinely appointed responsibility to care for those in need and can meet a wide range of humanitarian needs throughout the world.

Description

Humanitarian Services, or Latter-day Saint Charities, is the official humanitarian arm of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Projects address needs and priorities identified by areas, provide assistance to individuals and communities affected by disasters, and respond to presiding council priorities.

Projects attend to immediate needs while strengthening beneficiaries to better care for their future needs. Whether providing immediate relief or building capacity and development over time, Church humanitarian efforts seek to create conditions that can lead to self-reliance for individuals and families.

Who is this for?

Latter-day Saint Charities seeks to help those who are most vulnerable, without regard to race, religion, or nationality. Area personnel should consider humanitarian opportunities throughout the entire area, with special focus on individuals and families that are most vulnerable, and on the greatest needs that exist. Often, Church humanitarian aid can be used to respond to neglected crises or locations where many organizations may be less willing to assist.

How it works

The Church’s overall humanitarian focus and involvement are overseen by the Presiding Councils of the Church. Humanitarian aid is ultimately provided under the direction of the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Area Presidencies oversee the development of humanitarian plans, priorities, and strategic focuses for their respective areas with consultation from Church headquarters staff. In their area strategies, areas strive to support the purposes of the Church’s global humanitarian efforts while also addressing specific challenges affecting the population in the area. By identifying local needs and priorities, areas suit humanitarian efforts to the “conditions of the children of men” (Doctrine and Covenants 46:15).

Areas develop and maintain five-year humanitarian strategic plans that focus on a few key priorities in which the Church can make a significant, long-term impact on beneficiaries and communities. Areas also partner with Church headquarters in providing assistance to individuals and communities affected by disasters.

Education and Employment

BYU–Pathway Worldwide: PathwayConnect

Needs

Millions of Church members throughout the world don't have a university degree because of high costs or lack of access to quality higher education. With BYU–Pathway Worldwide, everyone can access low-cost online higher education within the framework of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Description

PathwayConnect is a one-year (three-semester), reduced-cost online program offered through BYU–Pathway Worldwide. It prepares students to start or finish a degree by building spiritual confidence and teaching foundational academic skills. After PathwayConnect, students can apply their course credits toward a degree at the same low price.

Each semester, students take a manageable course load of academic and religious education. All course credits count toward future BYU–Idaho degrees, presented and coordinated through BYU–Pathway Worldwide.

In addition to the online coursework, students also gather once a week to get support from their peers and to attend educational and leadership activities related to their courses. Depending on the location, gatherings may be held at a Church meetinghouse, at an institute building, or virtually through online groups. After PathwayConnect, students are encouraged to continue their education by earning BYU–Idaho certificates and degrees online.

Who is this for?

PathwayConnect is for people who want to start on the path to a Church-based education that leads to better employment, a certificate, or a university degree. Students do not need to have completed a high school diploma, pass any standardized test, receive an ecclesiastical endorsement, or be members of the Church in order to participate. But they do need to meet other admission requirements, and they need to be able to understand written and spoken English.

How it works

Students complete online courses and meet either virtually or in person each week with other local PathwayConnect students. PathwayConnect students may then choose to continue with BYU–Idaho online certificates and degree courses through BYU–Pathway Worldwide. They must have a B average or higher to continue.

BYU–Pathway Worldwide: Certificates and Degrees

Needs

Millions of Church members throughout the world don't have a university degree because of high costs or lack of access to quality higher education. With BYU–Pathway Worldwide, everyone can access low-cost online higher education within the framework of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Description

Students who fulfill PathwayConnect requirements and satisfy other BYU–Pathway admission requirements can begin a certificate or degree program directly. These students can choose from more than 30 BYU–Idaho online certificates that lead to focused degrees through BYU–Pathway Worldwide. Certificates and degrees are available in business, technology, applied health, family studies, and professional studies.

Students start by earning a job-ready certificate, typically by taking just five courses that can be completed in one year or less. Certificates help students gain marketable skills and increase their income potential before receiving a degree. Of the students who complete certificates and are seeking new or better employment, 72 percent have seen immediate job improvement. Those who complete a certificate are also more likely to continue toward a bachelor's degree.

Degrees are built by stacking certificates. This means that no credits are ever lost. Earning certificates enables students to start building skills that can help them get jobs. After their first certificate, students can gain an associate degree by completing a second certificate plus general education and elective courses. They can then gain a bachelor's degree by completing a third certificate plus more general education. Through this approach, students earn three job-ready certificates, an associate degree, and a bachelor's degree for the same cost and time it would have taken to earn only a bachelor's degree.

Who is this for?

To be eligible for an online degree program, students must meet all admission requirements. Students typically start with Pathway-Connect and must successfully complete all three semesters with a 3.0 GPA or higher to matriculate. Students with significant online experience also have the option of entering directly into an online degree program.

How it works

Students take online courses beginning in January, April, and September. Courses are 14 weeks long and are taught by skilled BYU–Idaho online instructors.

Stake Welfare and Self-Reliance Resource Centers

Needs

Many people have self-reliance needs involving employment, education, finances, and other topics.

Description

There are different ways a stake may choose to provide the support and assistance that members need. Some stakes may choose to establish a stake welfare and self-reliance resource center. In some stakes, these may be called a Welcome Center or a Community Resource Center. The purpose of a resource center is to help individuals become self-reliant, including by providing them access to information about community resources, one-on-one coaching and mentoring, and any additional workshops, classes, or services that might be needed.

Who is this for?

Stake welfare and self-reliance resource centers are for people who have self-reliance needs and are looking to improve their current situation. Needs may include employment, education, help with finances, addiction recovery, learning English, and so on.

These centers are not just for Church members. Anyone is welcome to visit a resource center.

How it works

Stake welfare and self-reliance resource centers help people find solutions for needs that are often beyond what a self-reliance group can help with. Resource centers are usually located in meetinghouses. Some centers are virtual and connect people electronically. If a center is in a physical location, each stake will decide how often the center is open and how it is staffed.

Volunteers will be called from the stake to help staff the center. The stake presidency oversees the center's operations, ensuring that volunteers are trained to provide services. The local welfare and self-reliance manager is able to provide assistance and support.

Education for Better Work

(Self-Reliance Group)

Needs

People often need specific education, training, and skills to obtain employment but don't know where to get started.

Description

The Education for Better Work group helps people create a local, market-based educational plan. This plan includes finding a career interest and analyzing the market need for the desired career. It also includes understanding the skills required for the job, exploring the best training options, and determining how to pay for training. The course covers skills for successful learning, 12 spiritual foundation principles, and habits to help people become self-reliant.

Who is this for?

This group helps people find and prepare for a career. It can help young adults looking to start a career, and it can also help older adults who want to improve their career or reenter the workforce. The group is not limited to Church members; anyone is welcome to attend.

How it works

Education for Better Work is often implemented as a 12-week self-reliance group (in-person or virtual). Self-reliance groups work like councils and are enhanced by the experiences of each person as well as the influence of the Holy Ghost. The skills formed in the workshop can be practiced alone or in a coaching situation.

Find a Better Job

(Self-Reliance Group)

Needs

Searching for a job can be difficult, complex, and stressful. Employment is critical to self-reliance, but many qualified people struggle to find work because they lack job-seeking skills. This struggle can negatively affect their finances, relationships, and mental and spiritual health.

Description

The Find a Better Job group helps qualified, job-ready, and actively searching job seekers learn practical job-search skills. It can help them pursue the right activities and work with God to find employment as quickly as possible. Under the direction of a group facilitator, group members follow a course manual. The length of the course can be set by the group and priesthood leaders. It may be held in Saturday-only groups, 3-week groups, 9-week groups, or 12-week groups.

Who is this for?

This is for any job seeker who is ready and qualified to get and keep a job. It is for those prepared to work hard in the job-search effort. People who are not currently qualified for the job they want or who may not be job-ready can counsel with their Church leader, who can direct them to other Church and community resources. The group is not limited to Church members; anyone is welcome to attend.

How it works

Find a Better Job can be implemented as a self-reliance group (in-person or virtual). Depending on the needs of the local unit and group members, the materials can be completed over different time periods. For example, group members could complete the materials over 12 weeks, meeting for two hours per week. For an accelerated schedule, they might complete two five-hour sessions by meeting on two back-to-back Saturdays.

Some people don't feel comfortable learning job-search skills in a group setting. This manual can also be reviewed and practiced alone or in one-on-one coaching situations with a welfare and self-reliance specialist.

For best-practices for virtual meetings see ChurchofJesusChrist.org/self-reliance/course-materials/facilitating-groups.

A printed version of the manual is available to purchase at store.ChurchofJesusChrist.org, and a digital version and supporting videos are available on the Gospel Library mobile app.

Description

Leader consultation is a free service for leaders needing to speak with a Family Services consultant. This can help Church leaders better understand the social and emotional needs and challenges of their members. Family Services consultants can also help Church leaders learn what resources exist. They can advise on how to move forward if a member needs professional help.

Consultation specialists in the United States, Canada, and a few other locations are licensed mental health professionals. They can help with issues of social and emotional health. International Family Services employees can direct leaders to resources in other nations.

Abuse Help Line

Needs

Physical, emotional, and sexual abuse are urgent and sensitive issues that must have an immediate and specific response.

Description

The abuse help line is a critical tool for local leaders who encounter any form of abuse.

Who is this for?

This is for priesthood unit leaders, which includes bishops, branch presidents, stake presidents, district presidents, and mission presidents. When other ward or branch organization leaders learn of abuse, they should immediately report it to legal authorities. They should also counsel with their bishop or stake president.

How it works

Priesthood unit leaders who are informed of abuse by either the abuser or the abused are required to immediately contact the abuse help line. They should also call if they become aware of a member viewing, purchasing, or distributing child pornography. Priesthood leaders will be given counsel on legal requirements and ministering support from legal and clinical professionals.

Here are the various help line numbers across the world:

- United States and Canada: 1-801-240-1911 or 1-800-453-3860, extension 2-1911
- United Kingdom: 0800 970 6757
- Ireland: 1800 937 546
- France: 0805 710 531
- Australia: 02 9841 5454 (from within the country)
- New Zealand: 09 488 5592 (from within the country)

In countries that do not have a help line, a bishop who learns of abuse should contact his stake president. He will seek guidance from the area legal counsel at the area office.

Addiction Recovery Program

Needs

Those struggling with addiction and other harmful behaviors need guidance and support from a gospel-centered viewpoint. In equal measure, family members and loved ones of those struggling with such behaviors need support too.

Description

The addiction recovery program provides free confidential support groups for individuals as they strive for recovery. Each meeting has a facilitator—someone recovering from addiction—who provides hope by sharing his or her personal story and testimony of recovery. Participants find a sponsor, or mentor, to help them work through each step of recovery. Participants study the manual Addiction Recovery Program: A Guide to Addiction Recovery and Healing to work through each of the 12 steps in the program.

Meetings are held in person, over the phone, or by video. These groups are not intended to be treatment groups; they are run by volunteers who are not professional therapists. Members may need professional treatment in addition to the addiction recovery support groups.

Spouses and family members may think the only solution to their problems is their loved one's recovery. However, spouse and family support groups can help them heal from the impact of their loved one's addiction whether or not the loved one chooses recovery. These groups operate in a similar way to addiction recovery support groups. Additionally, the manual Support Guide: Help for Spouses and Family of Those in Recovery provides critical principles, skills, and support.

Church leaders can encourage members they counsel to attend recovery meetings. Leaders and other members are also welcome at the meetings and can help a member feel comfortable attending a meeting.

Church leaders can use Addiction Recovery Program: A Guide to Addiction Recovery and Healing and Support Guide: Help for Spouses and Family of Those in Recovery when working with members who struggle with addiction. They can discuss steps and principles during visits, go through the study sections together, and make assignments from the book. Each guide can provide a framework for charting progress toward recovery.

Who is this for?

This is for those affected by addiction and other harmful behaviors, including the families and friends of those who struggle with such behaviors. It's also for Church leaders seeking support as they minister to those so affected.

How it works

Meetings for those struggling and for friends and family can be found at AddictionRecovery.ChurchofJesusChrist.org.

Counseling Services

(Limited Availability)

Needs

Each of us deals with challenges in life. Sometimes those challenges can overwhelm us, and we need help. Such experiences may include abuse, depression, addiction, or even natural disasters.

Description

Short-term professional counseling for missionaries, individuals, couples, and families is available through Family Services.

Pre-mission social and emotional assessments are given at no cost to future missionaries who may need additional support to be successful in the mission field. Family Services can also consult with Church leaders to help a future missionary prepare for service. Some current missionaries may receive support from Family Services counselors or other qualified professionals as approved by their mission president.

Who is this for?

This is for anyone experiencing overwhelming social and emotional challenges, such as depression, anxiety, abuse, addiction, and so on. Missionary candidates, serving missionaries of any age, couples, single expectant mothers, family members, and other individuals may benefit from counseling.

How it works

A Church leader must give a referral before Family Services can provide counseling. Leaders can use fast offerings to pay for services as needed. Counselors can recommend alternative treatment options when long-term care is necessary or if someone needs specialized or comprehensive care. These options can include community resources as well.

Missionaries who return home early may have up to six counseling sessions at no cost.

Finding Strength in the Lord: Emotional Resilience

(Self-Reliance Group)

Needs

All individuals and families face challenges and hardships during this life. Emotional distress is a common and normal response to life's challenges. How they manage life's challenges and disappointments can affect their relationships, spiritual resilience, ability to serve, and ability to provide for their basic needs.

Description

Finding Strength in the Lord: Emotional Resilience is designed to teach practical skills and develop spiritual resources for managing difficult life experiences. Participants increase emotional strength through the Savior and His Atonement. This is not group therapy or professional treatment for mental health issues. Those experiencing serious issues with depression, stress and anxiety, anger, addiction, or other mental health concerns should seek professional help.

This is a 10-week group that helps participants develop increased emotional strength and wellness through spiritual and practical skills such as the following:

- building emotional strength
- developing healthy thinking patterns
- understanding the connection between our bodies and emotions
- managing stress and anxiety
- understanding sadness and depression
- overcoming anger
- managing addictive behaviors
- building healthy relationships
- providing strength to others

Who is this for?

This group helps those who want to build greater emotional strength or assist others in increasing their emotional resilience. The group is not limited to Church members. Anyone is welcome to attend. While it can work with groups of various sizes, 8–10 participants is ideal.

When used with youth groups, it is recommended that participants be at least 16 years old and that two adults be present.

How it works

This can be implemented as a self-reliance group (in-person or virtual) that meets weekly for 10 weeks. A self-reliance group is led by facilitators and operates like a council with all participants discussing the course material and sharing thoughts and experiences. The influence of the Holy Ghost is invited to teach and testify of the truths being discussed as well as to provide personal revelation to the participants about building emotional resilience as individuals.

For best-practices for virtual meetings see ChurchofJesusChrist.org/self-reliance/course-materials/facilitating-groups.
