

Elevate the victim's head about 12 inches if the victim has difficulty breathing and does not have head injuries.

Elevate the victim's feet about 12 inches if the victim has no injuries to the head, back, or neck, or broken bones involving the hips or legs.

Place the victim on his or her side if the victim has face or mouth injuries, is unconscious, or is vomiting.

Leave the victim lying flat if you are not sure of his or her condition.